

Lowcountry Master Gardener Association

www.LowcountryMasterGardeners.org

Garden Secrets From the Masters

One of the most popular programs of the many offered by the Lowcountry Master Gardener Association, Lunch and Learn has returned with gusto to the Port Royal Farmers Market. Each Saturday at noon, a presentation by a noted gardener gets everyone introduced to another aspect of growing in the Lowcountry.

The Lunch and Learn series is a regular Saturday event for many in the community. By noon, the Gazebo at the Farmers Market on Ribaut Road in Port Royal is usually full, and most attendees have learned to bring a folding chair along with a bit of lunch and a drink from one of the vendors at the market.

Lowcountry Master Gardener Association

www.LowcountryMasterGardeners.org

There's always time for questions afterward, and there always are lots of questions! But that's why the Master Gardeners are there – they are trained and certified to bring research-based knowledge and expertise to the public about good practices in horticulture, gardening, and caring for the environment.

The series of Lunch and Learn from the Master Gardeners continues into the Fall at the Farmers Market in Port Royal.

Lowcountry Master Gardener Association

www.LowcountryMasterGardeners.org

Former LMGA President Will Balk moderating the 'Keeping it Growing' panel.